NEW YORK Analysis/Economy

Notable Economic and Real Estate Market Events

- ECON New York continues to suffer disproportionately from the events of September 11th and a struggling stock market. Total employment was down 97,775 jobs as of June, equating to a 2.3% drop. Month over month in April and May, the metro experienced job growth, but employment dipped again in June. The pace of local job losses is more than twice the national average. FIRE sector employers continue to battle weak market conditions and are cutting jobs, adding to the decline of payrolls in this sector. JP Morgan, Bear Stearns, Morgan Stanley, Reuters, and CIBC have all cut jobs recently. Between layoffs and relocations after September 11th, the FIRE sector was down 32,300 jobs for the year ending in June. In contrast, FIRE sector employers have experienced slight gains nationally. Business Services has also been a major source of losses. The sector was down almost 15,700 jobs, or more than 4% during this period. Every major sector with the exception of government (505 jobs created) has contracted over the past 12 months.
- APT Job losses and relocations have impacted net migration, which was sharply negative last year as more than 79,000 residents left the metro. However, a recent New York Times survey shows that downtown apartment landlords are faring surprising well. Rent discounts and government incentives have helped bring some residents back and attract new ones and apartment vacancies around the World Trade Center site have tightened considerably. At their nadir, apartment vacancies around ground zero were reportedly averaging 45%. Vacancies have been rising across the metro as the local economy has struggled, but are not expected to top 5%. Construction completions are expected to peak this year at just under 6,000 units. Activity has been ramping up in Westchester County with two major projects in the pipeline. A steady supply of units is also expected to come on line in Queens over the forecast.
- OFF The office market continues to cope with relocations and job cuts by some of its largest tenants. Losses will be slow to ebb as Goldman Sachs readies to move 2,000 workers to its 1.3 million SF campus in Jersey City next year and Morgan Stanley plans to move 1,500 to 2,000 out of Manhattan (but still in the metro to the former Chevron/Texaco HQ in Westchester County). Vacancies climbed to 10.7% in the second quarter, up roughly three percentage points from cyclical lows and are expected to top their 10.9% historical average this year. New York has also been impacted by recent corporate woes, as Arthur Andersen backed out of a lease of more than 500,000 SF at Boston Properties' Times Square Tower and WorldCom holds leases on almost 700,000 SF in nine locations throughout the metro. Construction levels remain strong due to tower construction in Midtown Manhattan and 6.7 million SF are currently underway, including Vornado's 900,000 SF tower at 59th and Lexington. Bloomberg has committed to 700,000 SF in the building, which will complete in early 2004.
- RET New York's economic climate has not been conducive to healthy levels of retail sales in recent quarters, and economic vacancies have risen. Retail sales are expected to rebound later this year, however, and fundamentals will realize some tightening in the outer years of the forecast. Developers have been active here since the late 1990s, and are expected to continue providing a steady flow of new product. The retail components of new office projects in Manhattan will contribute to this activity, but big-box expansion in the outer boroughs should account for the majority of new space. It remains unclear if the 430,000 SF World Trade Center retail concourse will be replicated in future redevelopment and plans for the site are still in the works.
- WHS Warehouse vacancies have deteriorated somewhat over the past two years, but conditions have remained relatively stable. Demand has been stagnant here, but the market is experiencing a flurry of activity near JFK International. Airis is underway on 435,000 SF of cargo facilities at JFK and International Airport Centers is expected to finish a 265,000 SF project nearby later this year.
- HOT Hotel occupancies have yet to pick up in New York as tourism suffers from both economic conditions and the events of September 11th. The 463-room Embassy Suites in Battery Park City recently reopened after being closed by the attacks. New construction is expected to slow and occupancies should recover steadily over the forecast.
